When an antiquated eye tissue banking system in Northern California made it increasingly difficult to get the highest quality corneas for transplantation, Douglas Holsclaw, MD decided to take action.

Dr. Holsclaw helped forge a first-of-its-kind partnership between Kaiser Permanente and SightLife, a national leader in eye banking that gives KP surgeons ready access to the highest quality cornea tissue from one of the world's largest donor pools. SightLife has also helped KP Northern California increase cornea donations from members by an astounding seven fold.

Dr. Holsclaw's innovative partnership with SightLife has exceeded expectations in every respect including improved efficiency, significant cost-savings and superb transplant quality with no adverse outcomes or corneal tissue complications.
