

MARC JAFFE, MD

ENDOCRINOLOGY, SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO

2008 Teaching Awards TEACHING AND CME

Many people with cardiovascular disease, diabetes and hypertension are enjoying longer and healthier lives because of Marc Jaffe, MD.

Dr. Jaffe is a volunteer attending physician at San Francisco General Hospital where he also holds the academic rank of Associate Clinical Professor. He is widely known for his commitment to teaching on the local, regional and national levels. His academic expertise covers a wide range of conditions that affect a broad section of the population including heart attack, stroke, diabetes and hypertension, and his emphasis is as much on prevention as it is on treatment.

Dr. Jaffe's generosity in sharing the most accurate and up-to-date information with his colleagues has resulted in better health outcomes for Kaiser Permanente members throughout Northern California.
