Patients in desperate need of emergency care are indeed fortunate to find themselves in the exceptionally skilled hands of physicians trained by Gus Garmel, MD.

Dr. Garmel is co-founder and co-director of the Stanford/Santa Clara Kaiser Permanente Emergency Medicine Residency Program. Daily, he is involved in helping residents develop the clinical skills necessary to excel in one of the most challenging and high-paced environments medicine has to offer.

Dr. Garmel has earned numerous teaching awards from Kaiser Permanente and professional associations. He shares his extensive knowledge with colleagues everywhere as the senior associate editor of The Permanente Journal and has been a contributing editor for two Emergency Medicine journals. He has written three textbooks including “Clinical Emergency Medicine Casebook,” published in 2009.
